

The Love that I choosed

The dimming light of the world made me see love from a far.

Waves of light shined brighter until I saw what sparked on my eyes.

Love was a story that never had life to me but with a blink of my eyes an angel was sent to me.

I said goodbye to all my tears with a hope of a better future to hear.

No truth is easy to hear, but in a hard way I had to bear.

All my thoughts and dreams had to disappear so that I could hold the love that was near.

The love that inspired my soul was a new song I liked to hear,

The love full of compassion is the new rhythm I like to share.

The love that is kind and patient can drive you to miles without looking back like crossing the Niles.

Strength I drive from it,

With faith it inspires my being,

It's the love that lets me be and by choice it guides me.

Never let what you see be the reason of sinking in the sea.

You can choose to see what your heart leads you to be.

The love that I choosed is a pride to me.

-miriamgambos